NOTE TO EMILY POST

What is the appropriate thing to say when a person meets a relative he hasn't seen for years? It depends on the relative, of course. Some persons are fortunate enough not to have the kind for whom the usual greeting is "Oh! It's you." It also could depend on how the meeting takes place.

Take the two long-separated cousins who recognized each other after their cars collided in Oklahoma City. The news story didn't reveal how they greeted each other. But most persons, if this sort of thing ever happens to them, will just say: "Well! I never expected to run into you!"

INCREDIBLE PATENTS

The Supreme Court was fully warranted in administering a slap at both the makers of simple little gadgets and the United States Patent Office. In one case it ruled that petty devices which contribute nothing to the advancement of science are not patentable. In another it sharply criticized the Patent Office for acting "like most administrative agencies" and trying to extend its own jurisdiction.

The court was given an opportunity to speak its piece because in a suit before it one company argued that another had infringed three claims to a patent involving a tray-like device used in chain stores. In a biting opinion, Justice Douglas declared that the patent system frequently departs "from constitutional standards which are supposed to govern." In citing the "incredible patents" which had been brought before the court he listed such "inventions" as putting elastic gussets in corsets and putting rollers on a machine to make it movable.

This was a well-deserved rebuke. The Supreme Court has plenty to do without getting mixed up in these silly problems.

BRAINS UP YONDER

Dr. Harold C. Urey, atomic scientist and Nobel Prize physicist, said in Miami he believes life exists on other planets. His study of the universe, he said, leaves little doubt that what's more, he doubts that the human race is the most intelligent form of planetary life.

That's the best news heard in weeks. The human race certainly hasn't been acting like a particularly intelligent species lately. It is good to know there may still be hope for the universe.

Many horrifying pictures of invasion of the earth by men from Mars have been painted. They have invariably been described as beasts that would destroy and subjugate. But perhaps little men from other planets will come on a mission of good will, to help straighten out the mess.

Is this the explanation of "flying saucers"? If these are space ships from other planets, they have shown no manifestation of hostile intent. Here may be a ray of hope.

Bensalem Board Votes To Abandon Eddington Bldg.

The Eddington school building upon the request of two registered engineers, who were retained by the board to make a survey of the damage done and the condition of the building. It was recommended to the board that they do not restore the building to its former condition, due to the fact it would mean practically a complete demolition of the building to repair it.

A representative of the Bensalem Taxpayers Association was present, also a representative group of the Home and Teachers Association of Trevose.

Schools will be closed for the Christmas holidays from Friday, Dec. 22nd, at 2:30 p. m., until Jan. 3rd.

The Federal milk program was approved for the Penn Valley and Trevose schools.

A report was received from the schools architect, H. V. Everett and Sons, Allentown, indicating that the plans for the additional rooms to be added to the Andalusia school would be completed this month, so that it can be requested the early part of January. Dr. Ruth Fedder, of the county staff, worked in the district on Monday, Dec. 4th.

Livery stamps—or else send Happy New Year cards.

Christmas cards for local delivery should be mailed "at least a week before Christmas and sooner if possible," he stated. The postmaster declared that despite the heavy volume of mail this year, he is confident it will be possible to deliver every last card and parcel before Christmas if the public continues to co-operate.

"Success will depend in a large measure upon prompt mailing by patrons," he stated.

Cheerful Workers Enjoy Christmas Party at Church

NEWPORTVILLE, Dec. 15.—The Cheerful Workers of the Newportville Community Church—Presbyterian, held a Christmas party in connection with their regular meeting in the church social room on Wednesday evening, 25 being present.

The room was decorated in festoons of red and green interspersed with bells, with a fireplace and candles in the front of the room, where gifts were placed.

The president, Mrs. Raymond Given, opened the meeting. Reports were turned in on the recent bazaar.

Election of officers took place, with the following results: President, Mrs. Charles Everett, Sr.; vice-president, Mrs. Walter Gillette; secretary, Mrs. Frank Greenlee; treasurer, Mrs. C. Melvin Johnson. New "Cheery Chums" were chosen.

Two former members were present, Mrs. William Clifton, from here, and Mrs. Julius Gehrman, now residing in Delaware. Mrs. John Lowrie played "Santa."

A delicious covered dish supper was enjoyed, the table being tastefully decorated, the centerpiece being a small decorated tree set in a wreath of fresh greens; the favors were Santa Claus on a marshmallow tied with red and green cellophane. An address system furnished music of Christmas carols.

The next regular meeting will be Jan. 19th, and will be held in the church social room.

tary, John Paglione, in the municipal building.

In addition, local industry will also be called upon to aid in the enrollment of its personnel in the borough's civil defense program.

Harold Heyden, manager of the local airport, offered the use of two planes to the Civil Defense Council, both of which can be equipped with litters. The Burgess accepted this offer. Major Marty Green, CAP, also spoke briefly to the meeting, emphasizing the need of increased participation by the citizens of the borough in the defense program, pointing out that the Civil Air Patrol is one of the few well organized civil defense agencies with a well rounded out program at this time.

at this time of year, he will nevertheless leave his workshop at the North Pole long enough to come to Bristol and function at the party.

The Christmas party given by the police have continued to increase in interest and importance each year, and it was thought that last year the facilities were heavily taxed, but larger plans are being made for this party.

All of the police are on the committee working for the success of the party.

Is The Public To Blame?

with explanatory statements by President Truman and Secretary of War Stimson. The Truman Stimson statements were devoted almost entirely to trying to defend General Marshall, and early public reactions appear to have indicated that the special pleading released on the Generals behalf did not stand up well when compared with the factual and unemotional official findings.

Something further was needed to take the heat off, and Mr. Truman produced it the next day. He issued a brief statement (August 30, 1945) saying that Pearl Harbor was "the result of the policy which the country itself pursued." He added: "I think the country is as much to blame as any individual."

In the controversy which arose concerning this novel alibi, sight pretty generally was lost of the derelictions and shortcomings set forth specifically in the report. In the course of time, Mr. Truman and his military leaders engineered a whitewash investigation by a controlled Congressional committee. Many witnesses were prevailed upon to change their sworn testimony, and certain key pieces of evidence mentioned by the Army Board were stolen or destroyed.

As to the validity of Mr. Truman's assertion, to the effect that in a republic the people themselves are to blame where long-standing national policies produce disasters, it would seem that the answer turns on the question of whether the public is kept informed, accurately and in detail, of the policies and actions of its government.

In the pre-Pearl Harbor era, the very essence of White House policy was the secret dragging of this nation into the World War. One time or another, outstanding New Dealers have boasted that the successful carrying out of that project represented the supreme heights of statesmanship. But obviously, the last thing which was considered at the time was letting the public know what its government was doing.

The American public did not have any real inkling of what their government was attempting to accomplish, and neither did it have any true picture of the wholly inadequate state of our military preparedness in the Pacific. Those were the days when the official military estimate of our relative strength in the Far East was: "We can lick the Japs in one hundred days!"

Even assuming, what Mr. Truman would be hard pressed to prove, that the public attitude in the matter had any bearing on what the Roosevelt Administration did, the public still was blameless in the matter because it functioned under complete misinformation as a result of the deliberate suppression of vital information by the Roosevelt staff.

This continues to be the criterion. If the public is to be blamed, the first step has to be to show that the government gave the public full and accurate information upon which to make a competent decision.

Only recently, for example, a distinguished American soldier undertook to put the responsibility for recent military unpreparedness on the shoulders of America's fathers and mothers, who, he argued, insisted on calling the American army back home at the end of World War II, and disbanding it.

It is quite true, of course, that there was a great deal of impatience in the fall of 1945 and spring of 1946, to get our boys demobilized. But certain points should be borne in mind before the public itself is blamed for the reckless tearing apart of our military strength which went on at that time.

For one thing, not a single public official of standing made any serious protest about this demobilization. On the contrary, they eagerly did what they could to speed it up. For another, the discharging of the men in uniform was only one part of the scrapping of Uncle Sam's fighting machine, and the public certainly was kept in the dark about such episodes as burning up millions of dollars in airplanes; loading priceless equipment on the decks of airplane carriers and "bulldozing" it into the sea; giving away arms and ammunitions on a lavish scale — arms which since then have been used to shoot down American soldiers. The public never sanctioned anything of that sort, because it has come to know about it only recently — five years after it happened.

Moreover, on the question of demobilization, the public was grossly misinformed on the political situation throughout the world. From Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt down, the talk was constantly about the brave new day which was dawning, in which the United Nations was to be the instrument of a durable peace, and in which Communist Russia, "bought off" with war loot, was to show her gratitude to the rest of the world by abandoning her age-old aggressive policies on behalf of world friendship.

Who in authority, in those days, was discussing world affairs in frank, practical terms, upon which the public could make a fair guess where five years would find us?

As for Mr. Godfrey's artless suggestion that the American people are somehow to blame, rather than the national administration, for the course of events in Korea, the facts of the matter are that for the better part of eight years our diplomats and national officers have so prevaricated about the whole Chinese situation, and so distorted and suppressed the information concerning it, that the experts themselves hardly know what to believe — let alone the man in the street!

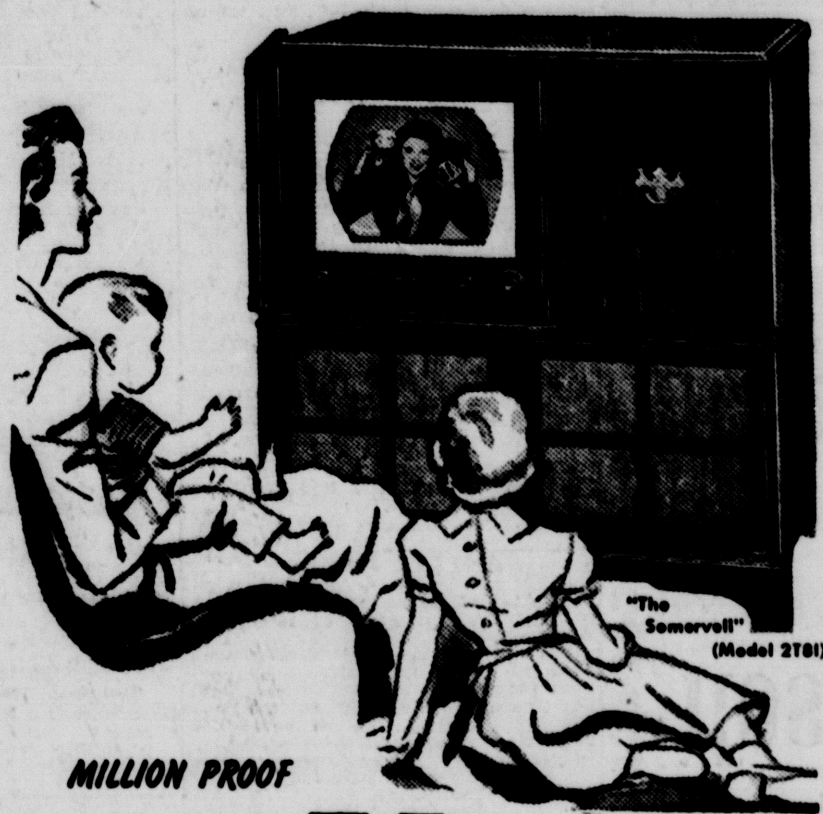

There may be some value, though probably a good deal less than Mr. Truman's sympathizers let on, in the suggestion that we ought to postpone the inquests until after we are past the present crisis. There continues to be another side to this argument, which is that the blunders of our public servants at Washington already have done us a lot more harm than anything Stalin has done to us — so that the quickest way to improve matters is to fire all the incompetents out of responsible positions.

But attempting to pass the buck for the frightful mess we are in over to the American people — that simply makes no sense whatever.

NEWS OF SCHOOLS IN AREA---

Bristol Twp. Elementary School

Edgely Intermediate:
Two former pupils of Edgely school, now serving with the armed forces, were guests of the school recently. They were John Vessa, now of the McDill air force base, Tampa, Fla. and Clinton Vessa, Hagerstown, Md.

Edgely Primary:

Monday afternoon was a big day for first and second graders of Edgely primary. They walked over to "Teddy" and "Buddy" Stakes' house to buy their Christmas trees. The children were very excited and everyone wanted to help carry the trees back to school. It will be much more fun trimming them this week, with ornaments that the children have made.

Maple Shade:

The first grade at Maple Shade school will present an original play called "The Teddy Bears' Picnic" on Monday at 10:30 a. m. The characters include: A little girl—Janet Bowker; Teddy bears—Catherine Uhl, Elaine Groom, "Billy" Trendler, Robert Heston, Frank Angelo, "Ben" Herb, "Billy" King, and Selma Neseth; "Frosty," the snowman—"Billy" Scott; "Rudolph the red-nosed Reindeer"—"Jimmy" Smith; the toys—"Teddy bear"—Donald Weidman; Mr. Jingle Bell—Mark Paroly; dollies—Thelma Costello, Gloria Ziegler, Marilyn Saul, Justine Loller, and Fay Bauer; Soldiers—Stephen McGrunder, Francis Rementer, and "Bobby" Baker; clowns—Amy Smock, Roy Fisher, Sandra Peterson, and "Jim" Hodgkiss; Jumping Jack—Bruce Harris; Angelia the Christmas angel—Marguerite Bossler.

General News:

The Christmas Sing of the Bristol township elementary schools are scheduled as follows: Dec. 18, 11:30 a. m. Maple Shade (morning group); 2 p. m. Maple Shade (afternoon group); Dec. 19, 11 a. m. Laurel Bend, two p. m. Newportville December 20, 11 a. m. Old Edgely, 2 p. m. Community; Dec. 21, 11:30 a. m. Croydon (morning group); 2 p. m. Croydon (afternoon group); Dec. 22, 11 a. m. New Edgely. Parents are cordially invited to attend. If weather permits, all programs will be held outside.

Health:

Since the cold and rainy weather has forced health classes to stay inside, the children are learning indoor games, safety rules that apply to the games, and a number of good health habits. The teaching of these health habits will be stories, from textbooks.

Neshaminy School

LANGHORNE, Dec. 15 — Neshaminy high school, here, will present a Community Christmas Festival on Friday, at 8:30 p. m. at Our Lady of Grace school auditorium, Pennel. The Festival will feature the Neshaminy high school band and newly formed Boys' chorus under the direction of Stanley D. Howell, and the Girls' chorus directed by Miss Jeanne T. Burtis.

Featured on the program of familiar Christmas music will be Miss Jean Coll, soprano, who will sing the senior honor solo, "O Holy Night" by Adolphe Adam, and a brass quartette comprised of Walter Mason, Edmund Mason, Dianne Shermer, and George Hoffner.

Members of the participating organizations are: Band, Phyllis Adamson, Karl Alscher, Thomas Buckley, Paul Dalessandro, Joseph Dickinson, Gerald Ellis, Patricia Enright, William Erwin, William Force, Lillian Haas, Shirley Heizmann, May Henry, George Hoffner.

Your New Social Security

FOR HOUSEHOLD WORKERS

(Maids, cooks, laundresses, butlers, gardeners, practical nurses and others who work in private homes.)

Beginning Jan. 1, 1951, your work in a private home may count toward monthly insurance payments for you and your family in old age, and for your family when you die.

Will Your Work Count Toward Social Security Payments?
Yes—if you meet the $50—24-day test described below. Two days a week of regular work for any one household employer will usually meet the test.

Here is the $50—24-Day Test

Ask yourself these two questions about any work you do in a private home after Jan. 1, 1951. If the answer to both of them is "yes" then the work counts toward social security.

1. Will you make $50 or more in cash in a three-month period from one household?
2. Will you work either full or part time on 24 or more days for this household employer during that three-month period or the three-month period just before it?

These are the three-month periods you use for the $50—24-day test: January-February-March; April-May-June; July-August-September; October-November-December.

If both of the questions in the $50—24-day test are answered "yes," you will get credit toward old-age and survivors insurance for your work after Jan. 1, 1951, for that employer. You will get credit for work in more than one home if you meet the $50—24-day test for more than one employer.

(If you are under 21, you do not get social security credit for work you do for your parents. A parent does not get social security credit for work done for his children. Also, if you do household work in a farm home, a different rule applies. You should ask for the booklet on social security for farm workers.)

What Should You Do?

If you do meet the $50—24-day test:

- (1) Show your social security card to your employer.
- (2) If your work in more than one household meets the test, show your card to each of your employers.
- (3) If you do not have a social security card, you can get one at your social security office.
- (4) If you have had a card and lost it, you should get a copy.

If there is no social security office near where you live, ask at the post office for an application for a social security card.

In January 1951, your regular work in private homes will begin to count toward social security. Your employer will deduct the social security tax from your wages, and add an equal amount as his own payment. The amount of your tax until 1954 will be 1½ cents on each dollar of your cash wages.

Your employer will send this money to the government with a report showing how much earnings should be added to your social security account. The amount of earnings in your social security account is used in figuring the amount of your own and your family's insurance payments.

If you have any further questions, write your Social Security Office 3207 Kensington Ave., Philadelphia 34, Pa.

NEWS OF INTEREST TO PA. FARMERS

By Al Spivak

(I. N. S. Penna. Farm Editor)
HARRISBURG, Dec. 15—(INS)—The scheduled reappointment of Miles Horst as Secretary of Agriculture is partly a tribute to the effectiveness of farm organizations. They were instrumental in persuading Governor-elect John S. Fine to reappoint the 59-year-old Lebanon county farmer.

Horst plans no major changes in the Department's personnel during his next term which will start January 16. He first was appointed in January, 1943.

Horst operates a 127-acre farm which specializes in fattening cattle and hogs weaned elsewhere.

Prior to his appointment seven years ago, Horst was field editor of the Pennsylvania Farmer, was secretary of the Pennsylvania Grange and editor of the organization's paper. He also was secretary of the powerful Council of Farm Organizations.

His deputy in the Department will continue to be W. S. Hagar, a native of Mercer county and one-time farmer who joined the Department in 1931. He has been on the payroll ever since with the exception of the four years the Democrats controlled the State government which ended in 1939. Hagar was graduated from the Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture in 1918. Prior to his appointment to State service, Hagar was associated with the Penn State extension division.

The State Production and Marketing Committee has launched its 1951 agricultural conservation program service to 72,000 Pennsylvania farmers and embracing 70 per cent of the crop land in the State. The paralyzing late November snow storm in western Pennsylvania caused delay in completing 1950 deliveries of agricultural limestone to a large number of farmers according to the committee. By the end of the month, however, 91 per cent of the total deliveries had been made under a share the cost program initiated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Government controls have been placed on loans for farm houses in an attempt to minimize inflation and conserve building materials. Carson F. Mertz, State Director of the Farmers' Home Administration, has announced that loans cannot be made for more than $2500. The money must be earmarked for repair or construction of farm buildings.

Maximum payment periods were shortened on loans but veterans will continue to get extra benefits, Mertz said.

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

BY JOE ELBERSON

Meeting . . . next Monday, December 18, the Edgely Rod & Gun Club will conclude this year's activities with a program in the meeting room of the Edgely Community Building. The Club now meets the third Monday of each month instead of the fourth Tuesday. All members are asked to be present, and interested sportsmen have a cordial invitation to attend.

Granddaddy . . . what is perhaps the largest red fox ever to be taken in this section of the country was killed on Tuesday of last week within a stone's throw of Bristol by Nunzio Rubino and Frank Richardson. The fox, which had feet as large as some hound dogs, weighed 14 pounds, 13 ounces. It would be interesting to know how many other foxes this old fellow had fathered and how many pieces of choice small game he consumed during his long unhampered career.

And it is too bad, also, that the Commonwealth cannot see fit to put a bounty on these red marauders. It would add a little incentive to those few who keep and hunt with fox hounds.

Contrast . . . back in 1917 the bag on rabbits was ten a day and 60 a season. The 1950 season called for a daily limit of 4 and 20 for the weekend. Why? Well, in 1917 there were two-thirds less hunters than today. The terrific gun pressure, there were an estimated one million gunners this year, plus steady reduction of the food and cover ranges, increased poaching, death by "mechanical predators" on highway and farm, plus other factors has reduced game populations. The Pennsylvania Game Commission has a tough job to do, and all things considered, has done a fine job under the conditions it must face.

Opens Christmas day . . . hares (snowshoe rabbits) become legal quarry on December 25 this year and may be legally hunted through January 1, 1951. Although gunners in the farming sections of the State do not get in much shooting for this game, it does produce some real sport for those who hunt the mountain sections.

Target shoot . . . this Sunday, December 17, beginning at 12 noon, a 16-yard bluerock target shoot, and a turkey shoot, will be run off over the traps of the Newportville Rod & Gun Club, Haunted Lane, Eddington. All shooters are invited to participate.

Since the co-chairmen of the Fish Committee have not checked them, the following winners in the 1950 fishing contest conducted by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association for its members are unofficial: Trout—3½ pound brown trout, entered by A. Donald Moyer, measuring 19 inches and caught in the Pocahontas, Bass—3½ pound bass, entered by Roddy Fulton, Newportville, measuring 20 inches and caught in the Neshaunty Creek. Pickerel—2½ pound pickerel, caught by Norman Morris, Bristol, measuring 20½ inches, and caught in the Canal at Morrisville. Salt Water—22 pound cod, caught by Al Thompson, Crofton, measuring 35 inches and taken at Herring Inlet. Non-game—1½ pound catfish, entered by George Whitlock, Eddington, measuring 20 inches and caught in the Delaware River. There were no entries in the carp division.
